Catlin Tenant House
Whitehaven
Private

c. 1900-1910

This story-and-a-half frame dwelling was built during the early years of the twentieth century during the ownership of Elizabeth A. G. Catlin, who owned the eighteenth century house known as Bolton and the farmland that bordered Whitehaven on the west. The four-bay, single-pile dwelling is a plain structure dominated by a pair of large gabled dormers that mark the medium pitched roof slope. A small kitchen wing extends to the back.

The property remained under Catlin family ownership until 1919 when Elizabeth A. G. Catlin's grandson, William G. Catlin, sold several lots and small houses that lined Locust Lane. Between 1919 and 1938 the tenant house was owned jointly by George H. Larmore and Woodland A. Anderson, who presumably rented the property like the Catlins. A long-time owner during the mid twentieth century was Calvert L. and Elizabeth R. Covington, who held title to the property between 1947 and 1965.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

Historically identified as the Catlin tenant house, this story-and-a-half frame dwelling stands at 23780 Locust Lane in the village of Whitehaven, Wicomico County, Maryland. The four-bay frame structure faces south with the gable roof oriented on an east/west axis.

Dating to around 1910, the story-and-half, four-bay frame dwelling is supported on a continuous brick foundation which has been partially stuccoed. The exterior of the rectangular house is clad with asbestos shingles, and the medium sloped gable roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Attached to the back of the main block is a single-story kitchen wing.

The south (main) elevation is an asymmetrical four-bay facade with the entrance fixed in the second bay from the right (east). The partially glazed door is flanked by six-over-six sash windows. The medium sloped gable roof is dominated by two large gabled dormers that interrupt the eave and are pierced by six-over-six sash windows. A single-flue brick chimney rises through the center of the house.

The gable ends are defined by single six-over-six sash windows which light the first and second floors. The eaves to the roof are slightly extended.

The north (rear) wall is partially covered by a single-story gable roof addition with a shed addition that extends the rear wing on its west side. An interior brick stove flue protrudes through the gable end.

The interior was not seen.
